Paris Styles

By MARY FENTRESS
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS. (U.P.)—Henry Creed has supplemented his collection with some interesting summer models. The materials are fascinating, and are unique as they are all created especially for Creed in London.

A new linen that looks exactly like tweed is ideal for summer suits. It comes in a zig-zag diamond weave in a variety of shades and until you actually feel the material with your fingers, you would swear that it was tweed. A two-piece suit of this linen in blue and white has a tailored jacket which is belted only in front. There are two breast pockets as well as two pockets on the front of the jacket.

The same weave in blue and brown is used for a one-piece dress that opens all the way down the front and fastens with round wooden buttons. Here again Creed uses the four front pockets. Blue shantung makes cuffs and a vest which has long streamers and ties in a bow at the back of the neck. This linen, by the way, is a bit stiffer than usual and is unscrutable, therefore is wonderfully adapted for tailored clothes.

Deep rose red linen makes a short sleeved dress which has a row of buttons running up the high neck. With this is worn a coat of linen in rose red and cream stripes. The coat, extremely full from the shoulder, falls to just above the knees. Lapels and turn-back revers are of red linen and striped linen covers the buttons of the dress.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP
Henry Creed uses a linen weave for summer suits which has the appearance of tweed. He makes a summer ensemble in which he combines a solid color with material striped in that same tone.

EVANS-GRAY NUPTIALS
Melvina Evans, daughter of John Evans, and Roy Gray, son of Mrs. Nellie Gray, both of Gardena, were married Saturday at 10:00 a. m. in the First Methodist church, Gardena, in the presence of the immediate families. The pastor of the church officiated.

Miss Evans wore an all-white ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of orchids. Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, of Glendale, were the only attendants. The wedding culminates a high school romance. Both young people were graduated from the Gardena schools and have a host of friends in the community. Mr. Gray is employed in the open hearth department of the Columbia Steel mills. They have established their home in Gardena.

SOUTHERN FRIENDS VISIT HORMELS
Mrs. Sarah Childress and two daughters, Molly and Julia, of Greensboro, Alabama, and Robert Walthall, of Newberg, North Carolina, old time friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hormel, 1651 218th street, called at their home for a brief visit one day this week. They are spending some weeks in California.

VISITOR FROM OREGON
Miss Eva McCormick, of Hillsboro, Oregon, is a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Esther I. Dennis, 1621 Amapola avenue.

Two Piano Recitals

Pupils of Mrs. Buffington Are Heard in Pleasing Programs

Piano students ranging in age from five to 16 years were presented in two recitals given at the studio home of Mrs. Kathryne Buffington, their teacher, on Saturday afternoon and evening, June 8. An enthusiastic audience of parents and friends, from Torrance, Los Angeles, and neighboring communities, listened attentively to the playing of these young musicians, who displayed remarkable skill and artistic talent. Especially interesting were the two-piano numbers which added zest and sparkle to the entertainment.

Refreshments were served to the guests after each program, and Mrs. Buffington expresses her appreciation to all friends who sent flowers, assisted in the serving, and helped in many ways during the afternoon and evening, and to Stone & Myers and the M. E. church for the loan of chairs.
